GETTING STARTED

Who was your favorite teacher or boss? What made them great?

DISCUSS

Is there a person in your life you can count on to tell you hard truths about yourself?

- What would be one of these truths that is difficult to hear?
- On the flip side, is there a friend you need to have a hard conversation with?

In a society that craves affirmation, how do you balance being a supportive friend that still holds people accountable?

- Do you think its possible to disagree on important core topics and maintain a trusting relationship?

Read John 15: 9-17

Knowing that Jesus is our forever friend and father is extremely comforting in our troubled times. Who is someone in your circle you want to share this hope with?

Jesus cared about people and loved his friends deeply. How can we be empathetic to friends without affirming everything? Affirmation has become synonymous with love. How can we avoid this trap?

- Have you ever kept the truth from someone to spare their feelings? How did this turn out?

Looking back on your younger self, what was something totally off base you believed about yourself? What helped you to see the truth?

APPLY IT

Jesus cares about friendship and life enters relationships where trust is built.

Take the risk of letting people see where you need guidance and prayer. Be that person to someone else as well.

How wonderful could life be if we invested in relationships we are taking for granted.
